SPECIAL NOTE

The Alberta Department of Health issued a warning Friday concerning the consumption of water. Owing to heavy spring run-off and flood conditions throughout the province, there is grave danger of contamination in wells. The Department urges all who have reason to suspect their water supply to send samples for analysis to the provincial Laboratories, Edmonton. Inspection and analysis is free, so inquirers pay only the express costs.

In a recent broadcast, Dr. Talbot, Provincial Veterinarian, warned against sleeping sickness in horses and outlined methods of protection.

Vaccination against sleeping sickness is cheap insurance and should be done in the Spring in order that the animals will have sufficient immunity to protect them during the susceptible period.

Chick vaccine which may be purchased from any drug store or registered veterinarian is the only sure protection known that will give satisfactory immunity. Cleanliness of the instruments and disinfection of the skin at the point of inoculation are of great importance and due precaution should be taken to avoid infection at the time of vaccination. Treatment should be given by a competent person and unless a farmer intends to inoculate his own horses the services of a registered veterinarian or a man selected by a veterinarian for the district should be obtained.

A pamphlet "Sleeping Sickness in Horses" has been prepared by Dr. Talbot, and a copy may be obtained from the Alberta Department of Agriculture on request.

Trees for Prairie Farms

During the severe snow storm experienced over a wide area of the prairie provinces in March this year, the value of established shelterbelts in reducing wind velocity and controlling snow accumulation around farm buildings, in fields, and along roads was well illustrated.

Farmers! Now is a good time to make plans to eliminate some of the inconveniences experienced then, and to put shelterbelts to work to your advantage. See to it that snow accumulates where it will benefit your alfalfa or hay field, your garden area and your fruit plantation, and not pile up in the yard and on the road.

Additional benefits are obtained through reduced evaporation, improved appearance, increased bird life, reduced soil drifting and much better gardens, and a supply of fence posts and fuel.

Broadleaf trees for planting on bona fide farm property are available from The Forest Nursery Station, Indian Head, Saskatchewan, in almost unlimited number, FREE of CHARGE, express charges COLLECT. Millions of these go out to thousands of planters each spring. Are YOU taking advantage of this service?

For evergreen trees there is a charge of $1.00 per 100, and to any one planter in any one year a minimum of 50 trees and a maximum of 500 trees will be supplied; planters pay express charges.

Broadleaf and evergreen trees are NOT shipped together.

Before these trees will be supplied planters must prepare land for them by a careful summerfallow for one year. Keep this regulation in mind this summer but your enquiry for trees for 1944 planting should be mailed to The Forest Nursery Station, Indian Head, Saskatchewan, NOW.—Contributed by John Walker, Superintendent, The Forest Nursery Station, Indian Head, Saskatchewan.

Plague Of Mice Infest Olds and Eat up Crops

Olds, April 15—A unique situation has arisen in the town of Olds. Since the fields have begun to disappear under water, thousands of country mice have been washed out of their homes in the grain stacks and have moved into town en masse to visit their town cousins.

They're fat, healthy-looking little mice—and why wouldn't they be?—fed on nothing but the best Alberta grain all winter. The town is overrun with them—especially at night when they come out to play along the sidewalks.

CAT HORDER

A crew of men burning off a field of grass near town killed hundreds—and dogs and cats are having a field day. One cat ate as many as she could, and then piled up no less than twelve on the back steps of her home. Apparently she, too, had heard of meat rationing and was indulging in a spot of hoarding.

While they are field mice, with short tails, the invaders are not at all averse to entering houses and vegetable stores in basements have been taking quite a beating. The mice really have a set-up, too, because late last fall a mysterious sort of malady attacked a good many of the cats, wiping them out; so there aren't even very many cats to contend with them.

Farmers, trying to get the stacks out of their fields to facilitate spring threshing, are finding the bundles infested; and a great deal of damage has been done the grain which had to be left in the fields due to the early winter.

One farmer tells of a straw stack which he decided to move. From each forkfull of straw (and it had been chewed almost to a powder) mice dropped on him until finally he gave up and left them to it.

One woman reports that when the snow began to go off her lawn it exposed a labyrinth of runways, used by the mice, and in places the grass was gnawed right down to the bare ground.

Hundreds of mice have been killed—two boys and two terriers went out in a field on Saturday, and during the day killed 1,500; but there seems to be just as many more.

From Bowden farmers report that a plague is killing some of the invaders.

The Royal Air Force

A NOTABLE EVENT of the past few weeks was the recent celebration of the 25th anniversary of the founding of the Royal Air Force. On April 1, 1918, the Royal Flying Corps and the Royal Naval Air Service were amalgamated into the R.A.F. This was just seven months before the end of the First World War, and it was a critical period in the last German drive in France. This new air force played an important part in turning back the Germans and at the close of the war it was recognized as the greatest air force in the world. As it observed its 25th anniversary it again occupied this position. The great German war machine met its first defeat at the hands of the R.A.F., in the Battle of Britain, and since then the Germans have learned many times that in planning their strategy, they sadly underestimated the strength of this once-despised air force. In 1918 the R.A.F. had 13,500 planes, 24,000 officers and 188,000 men of other ranks. Figures on its present strength are not made public, but it is known that vast expansion has taken place both in the number of machines and in personnel.

R.A.F. Is True Empire Force

Thousands of Canadians, Australians, New Zealanders and men from other parts of the Commonwealth have joined the R.A.F., and it is rightly called "an instrument of all the Empire." Among the Canadians who were with the Royal Air Force when it was first established were the two famous aces, "Billy" Bishop and "Billy" Barker, and they, with many others from this Dominion fought with the R.A.F. until the end of the First Great War. Today, in addition to the large number of Canadians who belong to the R.A.F., there are several Royal Canadian Air Force squadrons attached to it. Canada's satisfaction in the achievements of the R.A.F. was expressed in the message sent by Air Marshal L. S. Broadner, C.B., D.F.C., Chief of Air Staff, R.C.A.F., which said in part: "We of the Royal Canadian Air Force share our pride in this occasion not only because we serve with you and alongside you, but because on this day the Royal Canadian Air Force embarks upon its 20th year as a permanent arm of His Majesty's service in Canada. With my expression of admiration for your accomplishments, there goes also an expression of our confidence that success will continue to attend the enterprises of our Air Forces until the victory is won."

Bombers Carry Heavy Loads

The brilliant record of the R.A.F. in the present war is well known. Beginning with the Battle of Britain, and continuing to the present gigantic air offensive over occupied Europe, the Royal Air Force has contributed greatly to the success of the Allied cause, and in it lies much of our hope for ultimate victory. In 1942 over 50,000 fighter sorties were made by the R.A.F. from Britain alone, and in the past two years its bombers have sunk over 1,200,000 tons of enemy shipping and destroyed around 2,000 factories and industrial works in Germany. Bombing operations have steadily increased in tempo, and in the month of February over 10,000 tons of bombs were dropped by the R.A.F. in the Allied offensive in North Africa, the protection given by the R.A.F. to the ships carrying men and supplies was so effective that not one ship was lost in the entire operations. Much tribute has been paid to the gallant men who make up this force. On its 25th anniversary, members of the R.A.F. took over the guard at Buckingham Palace for the first time in history. On this occasion, His Majesty the King said of them, "they are the spirit that attains the stars, however hard the way may be."

HEALTH LEAGUE OF CANADA EATING RATIONALLY

Present advices from Ottawa indicate that meat rationing will not cover liver, heart and kidney. If a restricted use of the muscle meats leads to a greater use of organ meats a distinct nutritional advance will have been made.

Everyone by now has been informed that liver, calves', beef or pork is good food. Most people know that pork liver is even more valuable from a nutrition standpoint than the more expensive calves' liver. Very few people, however, know just how good it is. Three essential food elements apt to be lacking in the Canadian diet are iron, Vitamin A and riboflavin. In the light of that fact the following table is extremely interesting:

	Iron	Vitamin A	Riboflavin
Adults daily need	12 mgms.	5000 units	2.2 mgms.
1 small serving of liver (3.5 oz.)	provides	11.3 mgms.	7050 units
1 medium onion			2.07 mgms.

No other single food packs so much of the protective food elements into so small a space. So everyone should eat it at least once a week. If the family doesn't like it straight try one of these recipes:

Liver Leaf
1 lb. beef or pork liver
2 cups bread crumbs
1 medium onion
Put liver through the meat grinder. Add bread crumbs, onion, tomato and salt. Put in greased baking dish and place in pan containing warm water. Bake slowly 30 to 40 minutes.

Liver Salad
Chopped cooked liver with raw onion
Chopped celery
Mix with salad dressing and serve on lettuce

Liver Sandwiches
Use recipe for salad, omitting the chopped celery. Spread on thinly buttered whole wheat bread.

SMILE AWHILE

"I'm going to kiss you before I go," said the young man who had outstayed his welcome.

"Do it now while I'm still young," replied the girl warily.

Mrs. White — "Mrs. Gray's husband didn't leave her much when he died, did he?"
Mrs. Black — "No, but he left her often while he was alive."

Army Sergeant: "Have you any preference?"
Drattee: "Yes, sir."

Drattee: "What would you like to be?"
Drattee: "An ex-serviceman with a pension."

"A paratrooper has to undergo very exhausting training," states an army man. He certainly has to keep at it until he is fit to drop.

"I get wonderful recipes," gushed the bride who was entertaining her family for the first time. "I got one for Egyptian stew and one for a never-fail stain remover this morning."

"Which is this?" asked little Willie, tasting the stew with which he had just been served.

"Answer me, Clara," he said in a moment of passion. "I can bear this suspense no longer."

"Answer him, Clara," echoed the old man in the hall, thinking of the gas and coal bills. "I can bear this expense no longer."

Wife (in back seat) — "Don't drive so fast, George!"

Husband — "Why not?"

Wife — "That policeman on a motorcycle behind us can't get by."

As the young lovers lingered in the twilight, he asked anxiously:

"Darling, have you people agreed to our marriage?"

"Not yet," the girl replied, as she nestled closer to him; "father hasn't said anything and mother's waiting to contradict him."

Man: Watcha cryin' for?
Boy: I lost my nickel.

Man: Where?
Boy: In Virginia.

Man: How come?
Boy: She swallowed it.

Caller — May I speak to the lady of the house, please?
Maid — There's no lady of the house any more; she's a lieutenant.

"What became of that grocery bill?" asked the bank teller of his wife.

"I sent it back, dear."

"Sent it back? Why?"

"I wrote across it 'Insufficient funds'; just as you do with over-drawn cheques. Wasn't that all right?"

Employer (Interviewing applicant for job) — Know anything about electricity?

"Yes, sir."

"What's an armature?"

"A chap who boxes for nothing!"

Husband — What makes my life so miserable?

Wife — You have got me.

Husband — That's right.

The King's Pilot

Group Captain Fielden Awarded The Distinguished Flying Cross

The King's personal pilot, Group Capt. Edward H. Fielden, now commander of an R.C.A.F. bomber station, has been awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross for work on operational missions, some of which were of the most hazardous nature, the Air Ministry announced.

The 40-year-old pilot, who had flown the King and members of the Royal Family thousands of miles, was recalled for service with the R.A.F. in 1940.

DOGS QUICKLY RESPOND TO RIGHT KIND OF CAJOL

A Bright Dog Has a Good Owner

Pretty smart is this pup full of health and pep, and intelligence also. He's a credit to his owner's care. He's quick to learn tricks and loves to show off his knowledge. Lessons in manners begin with short words of command—"Come," "Go," "Down"—taught one at a time and by one person only, using the same tone of voice.

No whappings! When a dog becomes confused, the thing to do is to pet him. Then when he catches on, give him a tasty bit of food as reward.

Properly fed and cared for, your pet should put up a jolly fight against such ills as distemper—that particular enemy of puppies which often strikes at grown dogs, too. Do you know how distemper starts? Its symptoms.

Our 32-page booklet explains symptoms and treatment of distemper and many other doggie ills. Tells how to raise a dog from puppyhood on, give him a proper diet, grooming, training. Explains the teaching of amusing tricks.

Single Men Will Be In Army Or Essential Industry

Hon. Humphrey Mitchell, labor minister, told a gathering of Niagara district manufacturers that within six months there would be "very few" men or women in this country not in essential jobs.

He said that all single men are being re-examined and reclassified and will be either in the army or essential industry. He added that single men would not be allowed to return to non-essential jobs if they were turned down by the army.

Conscientious objectors, Mr. Mitchell said, would be taken from camps and put on farms to help the war effort. Use of prisoner-of-war labor was also under consideration, the minister said.

The next day she quietly engaged a lawyer and within several weeks she had obtained annulment of her marriage from one John Smith, who, on a date some years back had disappeared and never been heard from since.

Unaware of this drama in his "secretary's" life, Smith permitted himself to dream and be happy with Kitty. Their wedding day drew close and one afternoon Kitty asked him to come to the church with her for a rehearsal of the ceremony.

The organist was playing softly. Suddenly, madly, the song was, "Oh Perfect Love." Smith felt excitement course through his veins. He stared through Kitty. That song, it seemed to be tearing him apart. Who was this girl with him? She had no place in his life.

A moment later he was aware that Kitty was sitting in one of the pews crying softly. He brought himself back to reality. "Kitty what is it?" She shook her head. "It's no use Charles. I've known it from the beginning. You belong to someone in the past. It's no use deceiving ourselves."

His voice was harsh. "I love you Kitty. You've promised to marry me. I want that. I need that." She held to his hand. "Charles, just now you looked at me as if I were a stranger, an intrusive stranger trying to take the place of someone else, someone you loved as you'll never love me." She tried for a lighter tone. "It's all right Charles. I shan't go into a tragic mood. But it's over. It must be."

He stared at her. "I'm bewildered. I don't know what to say."

Her voice was soft. "You don't have to say anything. I was nearly the one but it didn't come off. Good-bye Charles—good luck."

CHAPTER III

It was from Smith's office assistant, Harrison, that Paula learned the news of the broken betrothal. Something lightened inside her but she made no comment.

Early one morning, however, her calm left her. A letter had arrived offering Charles Rainer a seat in Parliament. He must consent to stand in the Liberal interests, however, and his election would be a hard fight but a worthwhile one. Strangely, he wasn't in his office. . . . nor at home. At last Paula located him in Liverpool. He had gone there last night. Without hesitation, she took the next train.

It was Smith himself who opened the door of his hotel suite to her. "I'm sorry Miss Ransom," he said, "I'm distraught. I should have let you know where I was." Then, in a shaking voice, he explained, "Miss Ransom, you know of my experience here in Liverpool many years ago. I've told you all about it. Yesterday I came back here to try to trace through the past to what I'm convinced was the most vital part of my life."

He turned away. "But it wasn't any use. I've tramped the docks, the station yards, the streets. I've gone through the hotels. There's no clue. No hint of anything aroused itself in my memory."

For a moment she had been alive with hope. Now she said dully, "I'm terribly sorry. It must have been a great disappointment." Quickly then she told him about the seat in Parliament.

He listened, nodded and said in a hard voice, "Very well. Send a wire to the Liberal Committee and tell them I accept. Also, there's an express to London at eight fifteen. Suppose you make reservations."

It was a sunny day in early October when Charles Rainer won his victory. The Liberal seat in Parliament. Scores of friends came to congratulate him on the terrace of the House of Commons but nothing seemed worthwhile until Margaret Ransom arrived. They left together and went to a quiet restaurant for lunch.

Quickly, Smith came to the point. "Miss Ransom," he said, "I have a proposal to make. I need your help in my parliamentary life. You may think this is outrageous but after all, you and I are both ghost-ridden. You were married before. You seem to have forgotten it. . . . well, you know. We're prisoners of our past."

He leaned across the table. "But what if we were to pool our interests? Give each other support? Friendship?" He forced himself on but it was anticipated. "She was a lovely creature, full of life to her red gold hair. Why should she accept this—merger? Give up all thought of a future love? But he had started. He would finish. "I'm proposing marriage, Miss Ransom. I'll need a wife, a clever hostess. I'd make no emotional demands on you. . . . Her eyes had filled with tears. His voice was anxious. "Miss Ransom. . . . Margaret, have I hurt you?"

"No, no," she tried to smile and dabbed her eyes. "This is what comes of boasting that I never cry, I suppose."

He patted her hand. "But you will think about it? I'll wait you till tonight. I hope it will be 'yes.' I sincerely hope so Margaret."

His voice was soft, evening came. Feverishly she paced the floor. So he was offering her a merger. What a fantastic situation. She would be her own rival. His subconscious was moored in fidelity to Paula. And Paula was the woman from whom she must try to win him.

The telephone rang. She picked up the receiver. "Oh . . . hello Charles." Her voice was faint. The answer is "Yes." Anytime. As soon as you like."

"They were married soon after that, very quietly. Paula became the most distinguished social matron of the season. It added no less to her prestige that she was the Prime Minister's favorite and because of her knightship was bestowed on her husband. Now Paula was Lady Charles Rainer."

Through it all though she was unhappy and gay in turn. Sometimes her husband would look at her in a way that made her feel he was just on the brink of discovering her. Then the look would fade and she would be numb with despair again. They had given a brilliant ball one evening. It had lasted quite late and with the departure of everyone, they ascended the stairs to their apartments. Smith lingered in her sitting room. "You know," he said softly, "it's nearly morning. The morning of May 25th. Does that mean anything to you?"

Her eyes lightened. Yes, it's the anniversary of our wedding—our third anniversary."

He nodded then reached into his pocket and brought out a case, snapping it open. A magnificent diamond and emerald necklace was revealed. (To Be Continued)

Has Great Future

Canadian Pacific Airlines Sees Possibilities Of Commercial Helicopter. "When the present small but practical helicopter is developed into a large commercial machine with payload possibilities it will have a definite place in Canada's air picture and particularly along northern routes operated by this company," states C. H. Dickens, vice-president and general manager of Canadian Pacific Air Lines.

Announcement by Mr. Dickens that Canadian Pacific Air Lines has been closely following the development of this newest type of air equipment and intends to operate it when available is the first indication that helicopters will be used in Canada. Mr. Dickens states that the United States is already satisfied that the helicopter is a practical air transport vehicle and has many advantages especially in rescue and salvage operations.

It is felt that it will be an invaluable type of equipment in mountainous or difficult country particularly along the Arctic coast and Canadian Pacific Air Lines intends to add helicopters to its fleet for operations which prevail under the difficult flying conditions in Canada's northern coastal regions. Widespread public attention is being given to the success which the helicopter has made to date and many aviation enthusiasts foresee a big future for this type of equipment in the post-war period.

In addition to its peculiar advantages for rescue operations and flying along the northern routes of Canada, it is quite possible that it will find its place in short inter-urban runs as an aerial taxi service.

ACCEPT INVITATION

Washington.—Eight more governments have notified the American government they will participate in the international food conference scheduled to begin in U.S. April 27. This makes a total of 17 acceptances, including Canada, thus far received. Invitations were sent to 42 governments.

Quickly, Smith came to the point. "Miss Ransom," he said, "I have a proposal to make. I need your help in my parliamentary life. You may think this is outrageous but after all, you and I are both ghost-ridden. You were married before. You seem to have forgotten it. . . . well, you know. We're prisoners of our past."

"No, no," she tried to smile and dabbed her eyes. "This is what comes of boasting that I never cry, I suppose."

He patted her hand. "But you will think about it? I'll wait you till tonight. I hope it will be 'yes.' I sincerely hope so Margaret."

His voice was soft, evening came. Feverishly she paced the floor. So he was offering her a merger. What a fantastic situation. She would be her own rival. His subconscious was moored in fidelity to Paula. And Paula was the woman from whom she must try to win him.

The telephone rang. She picked up the receiver. "Oh . . . hello Charles." Her voice was faint. The answer is "Yes." Anytime. As soon as you like."

"They were married soon after that, very quietly. Paula became the most distinguished social matron of the season. It added no less to her prestige that she was the Prime Minister's favorite and because of her knightship was bestowed on her husband. Now Paula was Lady Charles Rainer."

Through it all though she was unhappy and gay in turn. Sometimes her husband would look at her in a way that made her feel he was just on the brink of discovering her. Then the look would fade and she would be numb with despair again. They had given a brilliant ball one evening. It had lasted quite late and with the departure of everyone, they ascended the stairs to their apartments. Smith lingered in her sitting room. "You know," he said softly, "it's nearly morning. The morning of May 25th. Does that mean anything to you?"

Her eyes lightened. Yes, it's the anniversary of our wedding—our third anniversary."

He nodded then reached into his pocket and brought out a case, snapping it open. A magnificent diamond and emerald necklace was revealed. (To Be Continued)

Using Novel System

South African Soldiers Will Vote For Parties, Not Individuals

South African soldiers will be allowed to take part in the next election in their country by a novel system which lets them vote only for parties, and not for individuals, according to official news received at Washington.

The new system will make "international election history," according to the South African information office, which received the announcement from Pretoria.

"In view of the diverse origins of the men making up the various army units, the normal system of balloting has been found to be impossible," the report said.

Under the new system each soldier will receive a ballot containing the names of all parties and the independent candidates. After making his choice he will mail the ballot in an envelope marked with his full name, the date and the place of his birth. The envelope will go to the central electoral bureau at Pretoria for counting.

Election officers in each constituent district will then be notified of how many votes to add for each party from those counted at the central bureau, the report said.

GARDEN NOTES

Where space is fairly limited, it is advisable to follow a strictly informal layout in landscaping the average home. The central portion of the grounds should be clear of beds and shrubbery and devoted entirely to grass. Around the edges will be grouped beds of perennial and annual flowers, leading up to shrubs and vines along the walls or fence boundaries. The effect of spaciousness and if the rigid boundaries are softened and partially hidden, so much the better and inviting.

Where the grounds are larger, experts advocate screening off a portion by bringing forward the surrounding shrubbery at one point, or using a hedge, wall or trees so that the whole affair will not be entirely visible from any one point of observation. This will add further to that air of spaciousness and also provide a secluded corner or two for children's swing or sandbox or possibly a seat or trellis-covered table, where on hot summer days the family may enjoy outdoor meals.

The secret of tender vegetables is quick and uninterrupted growth. This means watering where possible, steady cultivation and if procurable an application of good fertilizer. All of this, plus proper thinning of closely seeded stuff like carrots, seed onions, etc., should push growth along. It is only when beets, carrots, radish, etc., get a check in growth or become over-mature that they turn woody.

In order that the supply of vegetables be just right at picking, that is not too immature and not too old, the wise gardener spreads his sowings out over several weeks so that something will be coming along all the time. This is especially necessary with tender things like baby carrots, peas, beans, young beets and garden corn.

Recipe Of The Week

Slickest recipe of the week is this one for Liver Rolls with All-Brain Onion Stuffing. Economy-wise and most curtailing conscious—it stretches one and one-quarter pounds of liver to six generous and tempting servings. A sweet as a nut All-Brain Onion Stuffing fills each liver roll which in turn is rolled in crisp corn flakes crumbs, browned in hot fat and then simmered until done in a lightly covered pan in a moderate oven. Here's the recipe:

LIVER ROLLS WITH ALL-BRAIN ONION STUFFING

3 tablespoons fat
1 1/2 cups onion, minced onion
1 1/2 cups soft bread crumbs
1 cup All-Brain
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons water or stock

1/2 teaspoon salt
1 cup corn flakes
1 1/2 pounds liver, sliced into six thin slices
1 cup corn flakes
3 tablespoons fat
1/2 cup water or stock

Heat fat, add onions and brown lightly. Add bread crumbs, All-Brain, salt, pepper and water or stock. Mix well. Combine with milk; soak liver in milk about 10 minutes; drain. Spread each piece with stuffing; roll up and skewer with toothpicks. Crush corn flakes into fine crumbs. Roll liver in cereal crumbs; brown in hot fat. Add water or stock; cover tightly and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) about 30 minutes. Yield: Six servings.

Long weekends are pretty well a thing of the past, at least for the duration of the war, with five of the former statutory holidays cut out by a ruling from Ottawa under the War Measure Act.

Good Friday is still a legal holiday, but, Easter Monday, observed mainly by the banks and courts, will not be a holiday this year. Victoria Day on May 24th is also discontinued.

Alberta school children will start their last Easter holidays for the duration Friday, April 23rd. The holidays will continue for the following week, and schools will re-open on Monday, May 3rd.

This year school summer holidays extend from July 1st to October 10, and next year and every year thereafter, the holidays will be from August 1 to October 10.

HOW MUCH Did You Save LAST YEAR?

One of these days a man will call on you to talk to you about saving money. The caller will be one of your neighbors, or a man from your nearest town who is likely well known to you.

He is asking you to save money when he asks you to buy a Victory Bond. He is not asking you to give money to anybody or anything.

You save money when you buy a Victory
Bond . . . and you lend your money to Canada to help win the war. The money you save is yours. You will get it back later on, and have it to do anything you wish with it. And Canada will pay you 3% interest on your savings every year until the loan is paid back to you.

TAKE A FEW MINUTES TO FIGURE OUT HOW YOU ARE GETTING ALONG

This is something that every man should do now and then.

You will see how you are getting along by comparing savings with earnings. It's what you save that counts.

Perhaps you will say you saved all you could. Did you? Remember you are asking yourself questions. You are not getting figures to show anyone but yourself. Can you figure out how you can save more?

A sure way to save money is to save it in small sums—as you get it. Victory Bonds —which can be paid for in small instalments covering a six-months' period—provide a convenient method of carrying out a savings programme. Your Victory Bond salesman will tell you all particulars.

WHAT IS A VICTORY BOND?

A VICTORY BOND is the promise of the Dominion of Canada to repay in cash the full face value of the Bond at the time stipulated, with half-yearly interest at the rate of 3% per annum until maturity.

A Victory Bond is the safest investment in Canada. The entire resources of the Dominion stand behind it. Canada has been issuing bonds for 75 years, and has never failed to pay every dollar of principal and interest.

A Victory Bond is an asset more readily converted into cash than any other security.
